

Mental Health Training Competency Framework for School Staff

1. About this Framework

It is estimated that one in eight young people aged 5 to 19 years old has at least one diagnosable mental disorder, therefore it is likely that there will be many more who struggle at one or more points in their academic journey with their mental health and emotional wellbeing.

Research tells us that there is a clear link between poor mental health and academic achievement. Whilst we acknowledge reasons for mental health issues vary greatly, often spilling outside of the school environment, it is vital, however, that everyone working within a school has a basic understanding of what mental health is and has the confidence to recognise and respond to common issues. This will help ensure that children and young people are equipped with the skills and strategies to manage their mental health and emotional wellbeing, including early access to any additional help they need.

This guidance and assessment framework has been developed by Local Authority Public Health, YMCA Trinity Group, educational establishments and local NHS Services. We know that the training landscape in relation to Mental Health and resilience can be tricky, therefore this resource aims to simplify the complex picture of mental health training available through a tiered and structured approach to training within the school or college environment to ensure the whole school community is equipped with the knowledge and skills to support young peoples' mental health, as well as their own.

We do not intend for educational staff to diagnose or treat mental health problems, but instead support their pupils by identifying issues, offering low-level support strategies, knowing when and where to escalate concerns and adapting existing ways of working.

2. How to Use the Framework

This framework offers a clear structure which you may wish to use to aid the decision-making process when thinking about the training needs of your school community. There are 3 stages allowing for different depths of knowledge and training for different roles within the school. It offers some considerations of how to identify what training is needed and a list of recommended competencies needed within each stage.

Section 1 is a universal whole school assessment, however, sections 2 and 3 are aimed at those staff members who have greater responsibilities for supporting mental health.

Stage1.
